Re: Outsourcing Education: Experimental Evidence from Liberia

To Whom It May Concern:

The UBS Optimus foundation funded part of this research. In addition, Ark-EPG — a U.K.-based education charity — which oversaw the procurement process of the project and managed the resources during the first year of the program, also provided funding for the evaluation.

In all cases, the Principal Investigators (i.e., the authors of this paper) retained final say on the contents, substantive conclusions and formulation of academic papers that resulted from the evaluation.
