

Disclosure Statement

Author: Price V. Fishback

Paper: Local Economic Conditions and Fertility from the Great Depression through the Great Recession

Handwritten signature of Price V. Fishback in blue ink, followed by the date 1/7/20 in blue ink.

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

SOURCES OF FUNDING FOR RESEARCH

Since the beginning of 2010 I have received funding to support a broad range of research from the following entities. To my knowledge, none of these funding sources have any financial, ideological, or political stake in the findings of the research in this paper.

Research Grants

“Workplace Accidents and Compensation.” Arizona Industrial Commission. 2018. Research support for Andy Yuan.

“The Great Depression, the New Deal, and the Origins of Modern State Government Fiscal Policies.” National Science Foundation Grant SES-135744. $355,591 for three years. Collaborative with Shawn Kantor/Theresa Gutberlet at Florida State University (earlier Renssalaer Polytechnic Insitute) for another $123,000.

“Institutional Performance and Change During Boom and Bust: The Residential Mortgage Market, 1920-1940.” National Science Foundation Grant SES-1061927. $304,300 for three years. Collaborative with Kenneth Snowden at University of North Carolina, Greensboro for another $150,000.

”The Dramatic Rise in Agricultural Productivity in the U.S During the Twentieth Century: Disentangling the Roles of Technological Change, Government Policy, and Climate.” With Paul Rhode at Michigan as co-PI, and Michael Haines at Colgate as a contractor. National Science Foundation. SES- 0921732. $598,932.00, 2009-2012.

GRANTS FOR CONFERENCES

“The Microeconomics of the New Deal.” National Bureau of Economic Research and Bradley Foundation. Conferences in March 2012 and August 2012. Principal Investigator working in conjunction with Jim Poterba and Denis Healy of the NBER. $50,000.

SPONSORSHIP OF NSF DISSERTATION GRANTS

Keith Meyers. “Doctoral Dissertation Research in Economics: Investigating the Economic Consequences of Atmospheric Nuclear Testing.” $14,975. 2017-2018. NSF-1658749.

Erin McGuire. “Doctoral Dissertation Research in Economics: Investigating the Impact of the Civilian Conservation Corps Program on Health and Human Capital.” $15,803. 2016-2017. NSF-1629321.

Theresa Gutberlet. “Doctoral Dissertation Research in Economics: The Impact of Mechanization and Market Integration on Industry Location in Germany and the Pennsylvania-Ohio-Virginia Region, 1840-1910.” $10,832. 2012-2013.

Taylor Jaworski. “Doctoral Dissertation Research in Economics: The Warring Forties: New Evidence on the Economic Consequences of World War II” $9,900. 2011.

Carl Kitchens. “Doctoral Dissertation Research in Economics: The Tennessee Valley Authority.” 2010.

Teaching and Research Grants:

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, October 2016 – June-2017, $12,000.

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, November 2015 – June-2016, $12,000.

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, January 2013 – December 2014, $12,000.

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, January 2013 – December 2013, $12,000.

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, January 2012 – December 2012, $12,000.

Koch Scholars in Economic History at the University of Arizona. Koch Foundation, January 2011 – December 2011, $12,000.

Other Research Funding.

The Hoover Institution has provided funding that exceeds a cumulative $10,000 for research over the past several years.

I have received annual funding of $30,000 per year for my Thomas R. Brown Professorship at the University of Arizona through the University of Arizona Foundation.

I received funding for my research from the Economic History Association when I was Executive Director between 2012 and 2017.

Part of my salary at the University of Arizona provides funding for research.