Re: JEP Disclosure Statement for “How Close is Close? The Spatial Reach of Agglomeration Economies.”

December 2, 2019

Dear JEP Editors,

I declare that I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

My financial support for the work in this paper has come from the Maxwell School at Syracuse University. That support was used to hire graduate student assistants who aided in processing data for the project.

Dun and Bradstreet data used for the project were obtained through the site license at Syracuse University. The terms of that license do not allow us to share the data but we are free to share programs used to clean the data.

I receive a stipend from Elsevier to support work I perform as an editor of the Journal of Urban Economics. Nothing in that relationship conflicts with the present research or submission.

I am not aware of any other potential conflict regarding this research.

Sincerely,

Stuart S. Rosenthal
