

Disclosure Statement

paper: Absolute Poverty: When Necessity Displaces Desire

Funding: This research was supported through a research allowance provided by New York University Abu Dhabi.

The paper uses prices from the International Comparison Project 2011. Data from the core price list and the regional price lists for Asia and Africa were used. Distribution of the data is administered by the World Bank, which supplied me with the prices under the condition that I do not post them or release them to anyone. These data are available to researchers upon application to the Director of the Data Development Group at the World Bank. See ICP Global Office, 2011 ICP Data Access and Archiving Policy: Guiding Principles and Procedures for Data Access, 2012, <http://pubdocs.worldbank.org/en/790491487172245068/121120-ICPDataAccessPrinciples-Procedures.pdf>, pp. 6-7, for details on the application procedure.

I was a member of the Advisory Board to the World Bank Commission on Global Poverty.

Neither NYU, the World Bank, nor any other organization has a right to review this paper prior to publication.

Neither I nor any members of my family have any conflicts of interest with respect to this paper.
